Re: Bill No. 217-38 (COR), "AN ACT TO ADD A NEW § 70124 TO CHAPTER 70, TITLE 21, GUAM CODE ANNOTATED, RELATIVE TO AUTHORIZING LICENSED ELECTRICIANS TO CONDUCT WEATHERHEAD INSPECTIONS AND CERTIFICATIONS."

Håfa Adai Mr. Speaker,

Bill 217-38 (COR) is an essential piece of legislation that streamlines the restoration of power after typhoons or other natural disasters damage homes and businesses. Allowing all licensed electricians, rather than only master electricians, to certify that weatherheads are safe reduces the wait time people experience for necessary inspections.

Even with this change, safety remains our paramount concern. This amendment does not eliminate or reduce safety standards; rather, it recognizes that those we have already licensed as electricians are fully capable of performing this work.

For these reasons, I sign Bill No. 217-38 (COR) into law as Public Law No. 38-101.

Senseramente,

AN ACT TO ADD A NEW § 70124 TO CHAPTER 70, TITLE 21, GUAM CODE ANNOTATED, RELATIVE TO AUTHORIZING LICENSED ELECTRICIANS TO CONDUCT WEATHERHEAD INSPECTIONS AND CERTIFICATION.

1 BE IT ENACTED BY THE PEOPLE OF GUAM:

2 Section 1. Legislative Findings and Intent. I Liheslaturan Guåhan finds
3 that the Guam Power Authority (GPA) currently restricts weatherhead inspections 4 and certifications to master electricians following typhoons, tropical storms, and 5 other severe weather events. While this policy was originally intended to ensure

1 electrical safety and code compliance, it has produced unintended consequences that 2 burden residents and hinder timely power restoration.

3 Following major storms, thousands of homes and businesses across the island 4 sustain damage to weatherheads, which are the connection point between the island's 5 electrical grid and private property. Because GPA only recognizes inspections 6 conducted by master electricians, demand for their services quickly overwhelms the 7 limited number of master electricians available. As a result, families and businesses 8 often face higher costs and prolonged power outages at these very time when power 9 is most needed to quickly recover from typhoons and storms.

10 I Liheslaturan Guåhan further finds that the practical difference between a 11 licensed electrician and a master electrician is minimal with respect to the type of 12 work required for weatherhead inspection and certification. Both categories of 13 professionals undergo rigorous training, testing, and licensure through the Guam 14 Contractors License Board, and are well-versed in the National Electrical Code and 15 safety standards governing electrical systems. The specialized tasks involved in 16 assessing and certifying weatherheads fall well within the competency and expertise 17 of any licensed electrician.

18 Therefore, it is the intent of I Liheslaturan Guåhan to expand eligibility for 19 weatherhead inspection and certification to include all licensed electricians. This 20 policy change will strengthen Guam's disaster recovery capacity by increasing the 21 number of qualified professionals available, reducing costs to consumers, and 22 expediting the safe restoration of power to residents and businesses following 23 typhoons and other natural disasters.

24 Section 2. A new § 70124 of Chapter 70, Title 21, Guam Code Annotated, 25 is added to read:

26 “§ 70124. Electrical Inspections.

1 Electrical inspections for the purpose of ensuring safety and code 2 compliance, including the inspection of weatherheads, shall be performed by 3 a qualified inspector employed or designated by the Department of Public
4 Works or by a licensed electrician holding a current and valid license issued 5 by the Guam Contractors License Board under applicable provisions of law, 6 rules and regulations. Nothing in this Section shall be construed to prevent a 7 master electrician from continuing to perform such inspections, but such 8 inspections shall not be exclusively reserved to master electricians. All 9 electricians performing inspections must certify compliance with applicable 10 building codes and utility safety requirements.”
