Volleyball

tors' size and execution proved difficult for Guam to overcome, allowing New Caledonia to claim the second set, 25-18, and move within one set of victory.

Set 3

Facing the reality of an approaching loss, Guam's athletes delivered their most competitive display of volleyball of the night.

The hosts battled point-for-point through much of the third set and cut the deficit to 18-17 after capitalizing on several New Caledonia attacking errors. However, Guam struggled to take advantage of this momentum, surrendering points through missed serves and communication breakdowns on routine plays.

Recognizing his team's recent attacking mistakes, Velfuanu adjusted his approach to kills at the net during a crucial stretch. Rather than continuing to swing with full power, he softly replaced said power with soft swings but focused placement into open areas of Guam's court to halt the home team's momentum and help New Caledonia regain control.

The visitors remained composed down the stretch, closing out the set 25-22 to complete the straight-set victory.

New Caledonia's Velfuanu played a pivotal role in the victory for his team, making an impact throughout the match with efficient attacking, strong net play, and smart decision-making during key moments.

"It was a really good game against a really good team," Velfuanu said. "It was not so easy for us, and we fought a little bit [in the] third set, so I am very happy and proud [of] my team because it is a good victory."

NBA champion player, historic coach Nelson dead at 86

AFP

Don Nelson, who won the second-most games of any coach in NBA history and five NBA titles as a player with the Boston Celtics, died on Sunday, his family announced. He was 86.

Nelson was a member of NBA championship teams with Boston from 1966 to 1976 and the Celtics retired his jersey number 19.

As a coach, Nelson finished with a record of 1,335-1,063 — what had been an NBA record until Gregg Popovich passed him in 2022 — in stints with Golden State, Milwaukee, New York and Dallas from 1976 to 2010.

"Don Nelson revolutionized NBA basketball through his fearlessness, ingenuity and deep conviction," NBA commissioner Adam Silver said in a statement.

"He spent nearly 50 years in the NBA — winning five championships as a player with the Boston Celtics before building one of the most successful and pioneering coaching careers in league history.

"He brought an unmistakable personality to everything he did, and his impact on our sport will continue to be felt for generations."

Nelson, who was inducted into the Basketball Hall of Fame in 2012, never reached the NBA Finals as a coach but was remembered as a historic figure among bench bosses.

"The Golden State Warriors mourn the passing of Hall of Fame head coach Don Nelson," the team said in a statement.

"Nellie" was one of the most innovative and influential coaches in NBA history and an iconic figure in Warriors history...

"More than anything, Don Nelson will be remembered for his authenticity, larger-than-life personality, and incredible passion for basketball and his influence on the Warriors franchise will endure for years to come."

Steve Kerr, the current Warriors coach, recalled Nelson as a visionary whose influence remains with the modern era of the league.

"Don Nelson was a true innovator whose influence on the game of basketball is still felt today," Kerr said.

bating average, 1,088 hits including 98 home runs and drove in 350 runs as well as stealing 122 bases.

Anderson will retire as a member of the White Sox, who will pay tribute to him and other players on September 17.

"I'm getting emotional now because we're talking about something that I worked my whole life to get here," Anderson said.

"Nobody knows what

I sacrificed and what the body felt every day, what I was leaving at home from my kids to my wife, through some of the decisions I made. I still kept going and I had my moments where it bothered me.

"But I couldn't show it and it got to a point where it started showing out loud and I couldn't control it.

"I'm kind of happier, waking up and being able to be around my kids and really living a real life, because life is bigger than trying to make people happier with a bat and a ball."

"He consistently challenged conventional thinking, experimented with different lineups and styles of play, and saw possibilities in the game that others often did not.

"So much of what is now commonplace in the modern NBA can be traced back to the way Nellie approached the game."

The Celtics paid tribute to Nelson's playing career in a statement.

"Nellie was a tough and reliable all-around player whose tenacity and ability to 'think the game' was on full display throughout his 11 seasons with the Boston Celtics, where he was a key member of five champion ship teams across two eras the Celtics said.

The Bucks paid tribute to Nelson's first NBA coaching stint.

"During his 11 seasons as Bucks coach from 1976 to 1987, Nellie won two of his three NBA Coach of the Year awards and established himself as one of the most innovative and visionary leaders in basketball history," the Bucks said.

The Dallas Mavericks called him an innovator and legend whose "impact will never be forgotten, saying he left "an incredible mark on our franchise and the game of basketball."
