Dr. Rapadas further inquired whether a memorandum or email had been sent to the Attorney General's Office regarding the pending applications. B. Sablan reported that follow-up had been conducted with the office, and although there was no substantive update, the assigned attorney would be contacted for further follow-up regarding the matter.

		b) Dental Hygienist use of Dental Lasers The Board discussed the use of dental lasers by registered dental hygienists, an agenda item requested by P. Mendiola. It was noted that dental laser use among registered dental hygienists has become increasingly common in the United States, with some states permitting hygienists to use lasers while others do not. Given that dental hygienists practicing in Guam may arrive with prior laser training, the need to establish appropriate regulatory guidance regarding laser use was discussed. The discussion focused on hygiene-related applications, including laser bacterial reduction, laser curettage or laser-assisted periodontal therapy, and tooth desensitization, while distinguishing these procedures from gingivectomies, troughing, and other procedures outside the scope of dental hygiene practice. The Board reviewed the distinction between lasers used for hygiene procedures and those capable of performing irreversible dental procedures. It was explained that diode lasers commonly used by dental hygienists are soft-tissue lasers intended for procedures within the hygienist's scope of practice			Noted and are not intended for cutting or removing hard tissue. The Board discussed whether the use of such lasers during prophylaxis or periodontal maintenance would constitute an irreversible procedure. P. Mendiola noted that laser use may be employed for the removal of the inner lining of a periodontal pocket, similar to curettage, and that this application involves the removal of tissue. Concerns were therefore raised by Dr. Rapadas and Dr. Yang regarding whether such tissue removal would constitute an irreversible procedure and whether its use by dental hygienists would be consistent with the applicable scope-of-practice requirements. The Board agreed that additional research was necessary before determining whether legislation or other regulatory action regarding dental laser use by dental hygienists would be appropriate. The discussion focused on determining whether specific laser procedures are reversible or irreversible under the applicable dental laws, particularly because different types of lasers may have the capability to remove decay or otherwise permanently alter dental or oral tissue. It was noted that the physical effects and capabilities of the various lasers should be examined to determine whether their use falls within the scope of procedures permitted for dental hygienists. The Board also discussed the potential risks associated with laser technology and the importance of appropriate training and safety requirements. It was proposed that dental hygienists using lasers should receive relevant training or a safety course, particularly given that certain laser applications can result in irreversible changes. Gingival contouring was cited as an example of an irreversible procedure involving permanent tissue removal and was identified as a procedure that should remain within the practice of dentistry. It was further noted that information regarding dental laser use and training is available and that experience with laser technology has been incorporated into dental and dental hygiene practice in other jurisdictions.

	Item	Discussion	Responsible Party	Reporting Time Frame	Status

	Item	Discussion	Responsible Party	Reporting Time Frame	Status
		The Board emphasized that any determination regarding the permissibility of laser use must be consistent with existing law, particularly the distinction between reversible and irreversible procedures. Additional information regarding the technology, its applications, and the applicable legal requirements was to be compiled and presented to the Board for further review and discussion.
		c) Portability Act The Board discussed the need for clarification regarding the availability of an application for dental hygienists under the Portability Act and confirmed that such an application exists. It was explained that, similar to dentists seeking licensure through portability, a dental hygienist would be required to submit transcripts and other supporting documentation for the Board's review. The Board would evaluate the applicant's diploma, coursework, credentials, and other required documentation to determine whether the applicant satisfies the applicable licensure requirements. If the requirements are met, the applicant may be eligible for licensure without being required to take a clinical examination under the portability provisions. The Board also discussed whether a dental hygienist seeking licensure through the Portability Act would be subject to application and licensing fees. Although there was initial uncertainty regarding whether the Portability Act provides for fee exemptions, it was noted that the licensing authority would still be required to process the application and oversee matters involving standards of practice, discipline, and continuing education. The Board therefore discussed the applicability of administrative and licensing fees and indicated that the relevant law and application requirements should be reviewed to confirm the specific fees required. It was further discussed that applicants seeking licensure through portability should generally be subject to the same administrative requirements as other applicants, including the submission of documentation necessary to establish their qualifications and eligibility for licensure. While an applicant may not			Unanimously Approved

		be required to pay for or complete a clinical examination when qualifying under the portability provisions, the applicant would still be expected to pay the applicable application fee and satisfy the other requirements associated with obtaining a Guam license. For dental hygienists, the discussion indicated that obtaining a regular Guam dental hygiene license may be a more appropriate process, particularly if the applicant also holds certifications or permits for additional services, such as anesthesia, which would carry their own applicable requirements and fees. The Board emphasized that portability does not eliminate the need for the licensing authority to verify an applicant's qualifications and professional information. Applicants would still be required to provide relevant credentials, curriculum vitae, educational records, and other documentation demonstrating their qualifications and professional history. The Board also noted the importance of identifying where licensed practitioners are working in Guam so that the Board can maintain appropriate oversight and determine where practitioners may be located if concerns regarding their practice arise. The discussion concluded that applicants, whether applying through the Portability Act or through the regular licensure process, must submit the required information and documentation for the Board to review before licensure can be approved. B. Sablan asked to speak and discussed the requirements and procedures for practitioners seeking registration in Guam under the federal Military Spouse and Service Member portability provisions. Dr. Rapadas requested clarification regarding whether applicants are required to submit the full Guam Board of Examiners for Dentistry application in addition to the portability registration form. B. Sablan explained that the existing portability registration form was developed by the licensing office in consultation with assigned legal counsel in response to an increased number of military-related inquiries and was intended to apply generally across the various licensing boards. Under the federal law, military personnel and their spouses who are relocating to Guam may practice under portability upon providing proof of military orders and verification of an active license in good standing from another jurisdiction. The registration process is intended to allow the licensing authority to track practitioners practicing in Guam, although the portability provision does not require the same licensing process or issuance of a standard Guam license. The Board discussed whether additional information should be required from dental practitioners beyond the existing portability registration form. It was explained that, under the federal portability requirements, the practitioner is generally required to register with the licensing authority and provide verification of an out-of-jurisdiction license in good standing, while the portability registration remains effective for the duration of the practitioner's military orders. The Board considered whether requiring the standard Guam dental application in addition to the portability registration would impose additional requirements beyond those contemplated by federal law. It was noted that the portability registration form could be amended to incorporate additional information if the Board determined that such information was necessary. The Board was advised that other licensing boards had been accepting the existing form without requiring their standard professional license applications. The Board also discussed the duration and extension of portability registration. It was clarified that the Guam registration is intended to correspond with the practitioner's license in the jurisdiction where the license was originally issued. If the practitioner's military orders are extended, an extension of the Guam portability registration may be granted provided that the practitioner also renews or maintains the corresponding license in the other jurisdiction and submits updated license verification and supporting documentation. An extension would not be granted solely because the military orders remain active if the practitioner's underlying license in the other jurisdiction has expired.

	Item	Discussion	Responsible Party	Reporting Time Frame	Status
		The Board considered whether the existing portability registration process provided sufficient information concerning an applicant's professional qualifications, disciplinary history, and background. Questions were raised regarding the absence of a separate background check and whether the Board would have access to information concerning prior disciplinary matters or other issues that may not be reflected by a determination that the practitioner remains in good standing in another jurisdiction. It was explained that license verification from the practitioner's original jurisdiction is relied upon to establish good standing and that information concerning disciplinary matters identified by the originating jurisdiction would be brought to the Board's attention. The Board also discussed the NPDB and whether it would be independently reviewed for portability applicants. It was explained that the licensing office would review such information if a matter were reported by the other jurisdiction, but that the standard portability process does not otherwise require the same level of background investigation associated with a regular Guam license application. The Board further discussed the limitations imposed by the federal portability provisions, including the Board's authority concerning practitioners who qualify under portability. It was noted that the federal law governs the portability privilege and that the Board's authority includes addressing instances in which a practitioner provides false or misleading information on the registration. Members discussed whether the existing registration form adequately addressed these concerns, including the requirement that applicants attest under penalty of perjury that they are in good standing in their other jurisdiction. Following discussion, a motion was made to accept the existing portability registration for practitioners practicing in Guam as stated on the Registration for Guam Licensing form. The Board approved the motion.

	Item	Discussion	Responsible Party	Reporting Time Frame	Status
		The Board subsequently clarified that requests for extensions of portability registration should be submitted to HPLO with updated military orders and supporting documentation. B. Sablan reiterated that an extension requires both an extension of the practitioner's military orders and evidence that the practitioner's underlying professional license in the other jurisdiction remains active or has been renewed. The Board also discussed the history of the portability registration form and was advised that it had been developed approximately two to three years earlier by the licensing office in consultation with attorney Rob Weinberg. It was noted that the form had previously been discussed by the licensing office and reflected in prior Board meeting minutes, although some Board members indicated that they had not previously seen or reviewed the form. *Motion to Approve: P. most, which is All-Island. They did just that today by executing the perfect race. We are so proud of them," said Paet.

Establishing the culture

Winning the school's first ever XC championship represents more than a successful season; it sets a foundation for the Bulldogs running program.

The program was built from the ground up under the guidance of coach Paet, who took over the program in 2024. While the task was not easy, the moments leading up to this championship season were countless hours of training sessions, hard work, and most importantly, team building from the Bulldogs.

"There were definitely tough moments throughout the season, like bad races, illnesses, and fatigue. Coach Jon and I constantly reminded them that success wasn't going to come from one workout or one race. It was going to come from showing up every day, holding each other accountable, and trusting the process to peak at the right time," Paet said.

Okkodo girls celebrate 3rd place.

Under Paet's wing, the Bulldogs boys team has managed to climb the podium by finishing 3rd in 2024, 2nd in 2025 and finally taking the title in 2026.

"One of our biggest challenges was getting all athletes to believe in themselves and in each other. We had kids with different abilities, different personalities, and different levels of experience, so getting everyone to buy into the program and build a winning culture took some time," said Paet.

One team, one family

Okkodo continued to push their limits, demonstrating that a championship is not won by one athlete alone but through the collective effort of everyone working toward the same goal.

This year's squad proved that winning the team title required more than just the top runners, it required the strength of the pack. Even though the Bulldogs only had two runners place in the top 10 (#5 and #8), it was the depth of the team that made all the difference.

Paet and the Bulldogs are looking to continue the running legacy at Okkodo and be top contenders for future seasons by improving and consistently competing at the higher level.

"It was tough getting to the top, but we know it will be even tougher to stay there. Moving forward, want the younger runn to see what our team complished this year a believe that they can dc too," said Paet.

Paet would like to g recognition to all those w helped support and bu the program. "Thanks coach Jon, all my athlet and most especially g ry to God, as none of t would be possible withc his guidance and strengt

Brewers

League Baseball history to overturn a 3-0 deficit to win a best-of-seven series.

When Shohei Ohtani smashed a three-run home run deep into right field in the bottom of the second inning – the Japanese superstar's first home run in nearly two months – Dodgers fans dared to dream of a miracle.

But Ohtani's mammoth blast was to prove the highlight of another largely inconsistent performance by the expensively-assembled Dodgers offense, who squandered a series of late opportunities to get back into the game after stranding runners on third base in multiple innings.

Instead it was the Brewers – swept 4-0 by the Dodgers in the National League Championship Series last year – who rallied to a deserved victory.

- Outplayed by 'flawless' Brewers -

Dodgers manager Dave Roberts had few complaints at the loss, saying the 2024 and 2025 MLB champions had been comprehensively outplayed.

"At the end of the day, we got beat," Roberts said. "We got outplayed in all facets. Those guys played flawless.

"Defensively they pitched better than we did, they hit better than we did, they slugged more than we did. You've got to sometimes just tip your cap.

"I personally told our guys that there's no apologies, there's no sorries. We gave it everything we had, and it wasn't good enough. That's part of life."

The Brewers had initially struggled to find a way past Dodgers starting pitcher Tyler Glasnow but began making inroads in the fourth inning after Brice Turang and William Contreras got on base.

Jake Bauers — who was named series Most Valuable Player — stepped up to drive a double into right field and suddenly the Dodgers lead had been cut to 4-2.

David Hamilton singled to score Sal Frelick in the fifth inning to make it 4-3, and when Bauers drew a walk with the bases loaded in the top of the fifth, the Brewers had drawn level.

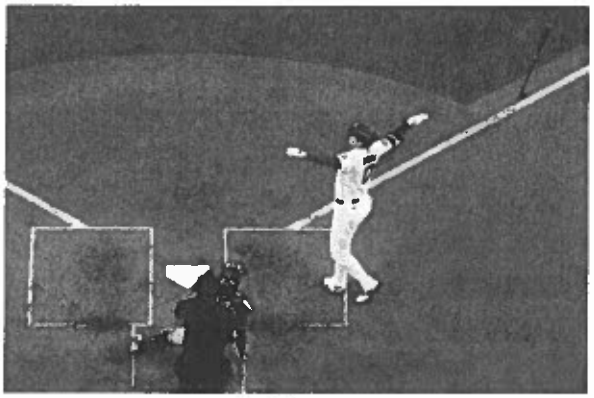

Garrett Mitchell then homered for the second straight game in the sixth inning to put the Brewers 5-4 up and Hamilton added an insurance solo shot in the ninth to seal the win.

The Dodgers, meanwhile, were left ruing an anemic offensive display that s them fail to exploit a ser of promising openings w their season on the line.

They failed to score in t sixth, seventh and eigh innings after getting a ru ner on third base — two those occasions with or one out — and the defe was sealed with a whimp as Brewers reliever Aar Ashby mopped up the fir three outs.

In Thursday's other pla off game, Petey Halpi two-run home run po ered Cleveland over Tam Bay 3-2 to give the Guar ians a 2-1 lead in the American League Champ onship Series.

Games four and five a set for Cleveland on Frid and Saturday.

Shohei Ohtani's first home run in nearly two months fired the Dodgers into a 4-0 lead.

Panthers

the Panthers offense was unable to get going and another pair of Boerne touchdowns in the fourth provided the final margin.

Byrn led the Panthers with 26 carries for 171 yards, while Morris added 45 yards on 13 attempts and a touchdown.

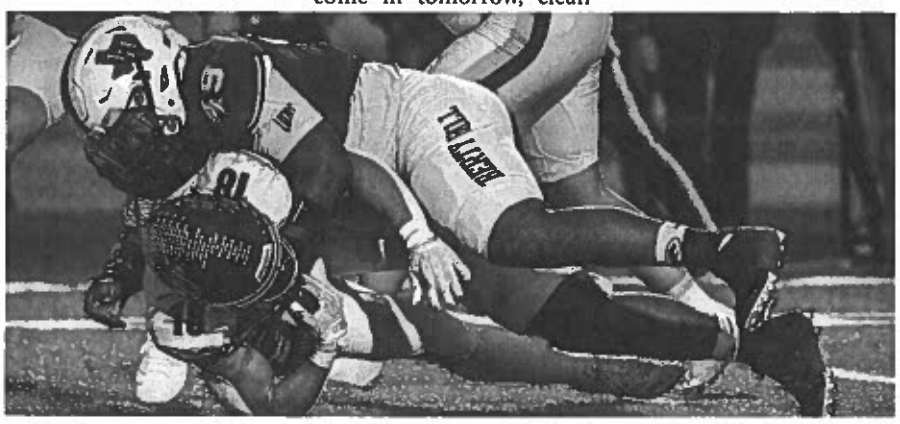

Liberty Hill (4-4, 2-2) dropped to fourth place in the district standings with the loss, but Seaborn is confident his team will rebound in the final two games of the regular season, at Long Creek next Friday, then after a bye week at home against Veterans Memorial on Nov. 6.

"I told our players this loss doesn't define us," he said. "We're still in pretty good shape to make a playoff run, so we're going to come in tomorrow, clean up the things we need to and keep our eyes on the prize."

As for any worries of his players being down after back-to-back district defeats, Seaborn isn't buying in.

"I'm not worried about our guys getting down," he said. "They have a lot of fight, so not a concern at all."
